School's open doors extend challenging invitation

Each September brings a complete change in a high school. Newcomers enter the wide, strange halls for the first time. Returning students enter familiar winding corridors. Some of these students will fill positions of leadership; for others, there are smaller but equally important places. As students and instructors walk up the steps and through the doors on that first day, they immediately enter the realm of challenge and never leave it. Challenge manifests itself in the readjustments, the new problems, minor and major, which erupt during each class period, at each lunch period, after school in football practice, at a club's first meeting of the year; it confronts every Rebel as he enters Douglas Freeman High School. Challenge shows its face in the expressions of others. It is bewildered anxiety in the face of the weary cheerleader who struggles to raise spectators' waning spirits. It is puzzled determination in the face of the science student who works on a difficult problem or completes a complicated project. It is satisfied assurance in the face of the student who knows the answer to a tricky test question. Often defined more often undefined, challenges gradually materialize day by day.

Rebels meet challenges from unusual sources

Every challenge does not arise from a crisis. There are the subtler ones-improvement of an academic average, qualification for college entrance, acquisition of teachers' and classmates' respect. These come forth quietly and stand in the background. They are the forces that cause Rebels to set their goals, then strive to reach them. There are the challenges that one expects, looks for, and recognizes. But there are the others, the unexpected ones that come quickly and without warning. These arrive disguised as special announcements, heavy snowstorms, repeated fire drills, which interrupt the orderly progression of school life. After these intrusions, scattered students must resume tasks and pick up the broken threads of their different activities to join them together again.

At DSF challenges are not confined to the classroom alone, although they are most apparent there. The hours a Rebel spends after school prepare him for a different kind of contest. The athlete drills, readying himself for the next day's game, match, or meet. The budding actor rehearses, then walks onto a bare stage, making it come alive before the audience. Rebels work hard not only to create standards but also to maintain them. An allstate band must practice if it is to continue to entertain and inspire listeners. Delegates to language tournaments or student conventions must keep abreast of the new developments in their fields if they wish to preserve DSF's established tradition. Each day brings new challenges to everyone. Whether prepared or taken by surprise, Douglas Freeman students meet them with ingenuity and determination. To Rebels, meeting challenges is an accepted, rewarding way of life.

Student life at DSF challenges Rebels to perform at their best

No phase of student life is without its challenge. Classroom activities demand a student's attention, even on the laziest spring days. Caught gazing out of a window, he cannot supply a correct answer at the required moment. Dramatic productions invite students to memorize lines, paint scenery, or manipulate a spotlight. While actors on stage practice their timing, workers backstage rush about prompting, setting up props, pulling light switches. Athletic contests call not only for stamina and ability from participants, but also for spirit from spectators who hope and strain with a runner or jumper. Rebels work to find their roles, and they play them with enthusiasm.

Fall activities beckon vacationing students

Early in September DSF students reluctantly traded beaches, tennis courts, and summer jobs for classrooms, textbooks, and teachers. The football team, already reacquainted with school because of weeks of practice during the summer, initiated afternoon sessions in preparation for the coming season.

Incoming sophomores, bewildered by the first day in a new school, soon became familiar with winding corridors and elusive classrooms. Participation in high school life began with the election of junior varsity cheerleaders. Hopeful sophomore girls worked hard to learn cheers and to present them before all the students for the final selection.

Senior Day in the library helped to acquaint the upperclassmen with the newest facilities for both research and enjoyment. After listening to an explanation of the organization of library material, they were free to browse among the tables containing brand new books and suggested ideas for English term papers.

In the auditorium, busy yearbook staff members checked for proper attire and smiling faces before sending juniors and sophomores backstage. Here, concealed behind the red curtain, a photographer patiently posed hundreds of students as he took individual pictures.

With the kickoff of the first football game of the season, the transition from summer to fall was complete. Vacations faded into the background, and Rebels embarked on the journey through another school year.

A DRUM ROLL AND LOUD TRUMPET BLAST set the pace for spirited Rebels, cheering the team at a pre-school pep rally.

WARM SMILES counteract chilly weather as Commentator princesses Jerry Howard and Toni Leach pass the stands.

A drum major's whistle, a drummer's sharp response, and the 1962 Homecoming festivities began. In the interlude between pep rally and final bell, student spirit grew with anticipation. Almost before the notes of the last bell faded, the parking lot in front of school rang with festive confusion. Laughter and chatter filled the air as Rebels with keen eyes and cold hands created intricate designs out of ordinary napkins, crepe paper, and foil.

Finally seven o'clock arrived, cold and clear. Princesses, ready to turn warming smiles on shivering spectators, settled themselves atop floats. Excited cries of "Here they come!" accompanied the transformed automobiles onto the field. Following a complete circuit before the crowd, the princesses disembarked to view the football game from seats on the 50-yard line.

The closing minutes of the first half found the girls wending their way cautiously through the cheering fans in preparation for the evening's climax. Then, one by one, they walked slowly to mid-field.

After silence fell, the announcer's voice boomed through the loudspeaker to proclaim Dee Dee Nottingham 1962 Homecoming Queen and Pam Curtis her Maid-of-Honor. Two prize-winning floats, those of the French Club and Y-Teens Triangle III, came forward to convey radiant royalty around the field.

The game closed with a DSF come-from-behind victory, and Rebels and their dates retired to a Harvest Hop, final act of another Homecoming celebration.

Seniors invite audience into Never Never Land

Warm days cooled and long days shortened into the last weeks of autumn. Afternoons of waning sunlight found the auditorium full of students working on DSF's senior play. At the performance, players took a delighted audience on a magic trip to Never Never Land, home of Peter Pan. Here lived the Lost Boys, pirates, Indians, and others characters in Sir James Barrie's classic. Agnes Brown starred as Peter, the boy who wanted never to grow up; Glen Shivel portrayed the arch-fiend, Captain Hook. Included in the cast were Ginny Childrey, Wendy; Anne Askew, John; Barbara Sweeney, Michael; Barbara Post, Nana; Betty Garner, Mrs. Darling; Rodney Smith, Mr. Darling; Joe Bobb, Smee; and Linda Broyles, Tiger Lily.

Christmas holidays came as a welcome interlude in academic life. When the holiday season was over, however, the excitement of basketball caught Rebels up in a whirl of games and pep rallies. During long hours after classes, the front hall echoed with the shouts of spirited varsity cheerers as they practiced for the approaching Cheer Rally. Entering a cheer and an original song, the girls won the gleaming bronze first prize trophy.

As the end of January arrived, gay students gradually became quieter and more serious. Teachers began their mid-year reviews to recall to student's minds work done in September. Then the first day of exams, for so long a nebulous concern, became a reality.

Snowstorm brings early second semester holiday

SPECTATORS HOLD THEIR BREATH while a Rebel wrestler struggles to maintain his top position over a wriggling opponent.

Exams over, Rebels entered enthusiastically into their second-semester activities. With fresh energy they cheered at Saturday wrestling matches and attacked new assignments.

As Valentine's Day approached, FBLA members began planning for their traditional Sweetheart Dance. Giving the cafeteria a romantic mood, they turned bright red cupids loose to flit among red and white hearts and streamers. During a lull in the Lo-jos' music, couples saw sophomore Evelyn Perham crowned DSF Sweetheart.

Interrupting the orderly progression of events came "snow days." Rebels greeted the swirling white crystals with mixed feelings—delight at the prospect of a surprise holiday and despair at the thought of days to be made up. The first emotion triumphed when a voice announcing that school would close early came through the public address system. Students merrily thronged the parking lot to clean snow off windshields and to dodge a few stray snowballs.

The "midnight sun" shone in the gym as sophomores danced at their first class-sponsored fete. After choosing their theme, "The Land of the Midnight Sun," they decked the walls and ceiling with sparkling silver suns and crepe paper streamers.

In senior homerooms the time of measuring for caps and gowns and ordering calling cards was at hand. With it came the realization that graduation was not so distant after all.

Rebels pass winter with dramas, Language Week

CURIOS FROM FOREIGN LANDS, placed in upstairs hall cases, attract interested Rebels during Language Emphasis Week.

With a few experimental forays, spring once again began coy preparations for her entrance. After weeks of chilly mornings, Rebels would awake to find dew replacing frost on the grass. They alternated sweaters with winter coats in their efforts to combat the mutable weather.

DSF thespians resumed their drama activities as the Night of One-Act Plays approached. When the red curtains parted and the plays began, actors treated audience to a variety of moods—the wistful poignancy of A White Butterfly, the comic strangeness of Joey, the tragic tenderness of Romeo and Juliet.

Hardly pausing for breath, energetic students followed the plays with Language Emphasis Week. To acquaint fellow Rebels with the customs and languages of other countries, members of language clubs decorated hall cases with displays, and they prepared European delicacies for after-school bake sales. At assembly programs, Freemanites who studied Spanish, French, or Latin invited an interested audience to join the singing of songs in unfamiliar tongues; German students taught conversation in their skit showing the troubles of an English-speaking student abroad.

Classes continued at their normal pace since students had not yet caught spring fever. Seniors, however, were suffering from another equally wide-spread ailment, "senioritis." While exasperated teachers struggled to cope with this, their charges continued to dream of picnics and graduation.

Juniors and SCA conduct universal talent quest

A SYMPATHETIC FAIRY GODMOTHER (Cherry Wolstenholme) promises Cinderella (Ann Lyon) that she may attend the ball.

The whir of lawnmowers and a scent of wild onions drifting through open windows heralded the arrival of spring. Rebels intermixed lethargy with restless energy as they sat in classrooms and watched sun and shadow making patterns on the lawn. Dreamily listening to birds sing, they often found themselves starting and stammering at a question posed by an instructor.

Juniors and SCA workers directed a part of their energy to their joint production, Talent-Stunt Night, set against a background of "Heavenly Stars." After an astronaut, searching for talent, entered outer space, a parade of entertaining Rebels crossed the stage. The fairy tale "Cinderella," somewhat altered, came to life; cavemen pounded on logs and rocks; dancers and singers performed. When the procession ended, judges made their decision and awarded prizes to the Hi-Y and individual acts of folk singer Dave Jones and the Preps, a jazz instrumental group.

Athletes involved in spring sports began to stay after school as teams initiated their practice season. Voices echoed from the front parking lot to the football gridiron, both temporarily occupied by the track team. Joining the other groups of Rebels, cindermen did limbering-up exercises and ran time trials.

Throughout the school a new sense of urgency became apparent. The late rush of term papers, parallel reading, and book reports was beginning. Year's end was almost in sight.

With early spring came the event long anticipated by DSF seniors, the Senior Court Dance. Working long hours, these industrious Rebels disguised the gym until it became New York's "Great White Way." They draped a deep blue ceiling above the steps which led to gold-and-white doors of the Waldorf Astoria. Across the way they placed a small Central Park with a fountain splashing perfumed water. Twinkling foil lanterns marked street corners, and murals of a skyline with its tall buildings concealed the walls.

After the mad rush of decorating, getting new hair-dos, and buying corsages, seniors rested briefly. When they returned, a wonderland of soft colored lights and shimmering decorations greeted them.

Shortly after nine, the doors opened for members of the court to enter. Following the completion of the figure, everyone awaited the announcement, then applauded as Frank Bowman and Peggy Fitzhugh received the golden crowns of the king and queen, and as Rodney Smith and Pat Mason were named royal attendants. Princes Bob Ackerly, Pete Tosh, Lindley Smith, Glen Shivel, Willy Maples, Joe Kent, Bill Jones, Jay Hereford, Wilburn Hatcher, and John Easter acted as escorts for princesses Anne Askew, Brenda Stroud, Betty Abernathy, Anne Seaholm, Pam Curtis, Phoebe Flinn, Betty Jean Highfill, Penny Sanford, Jeri Lewis, and Dee Dee Nottingham.

FREEMANITES, TRYING TO EVADE SPRING FEVER, concentrate on measuring chemicals for a scientific experiment in the lab.

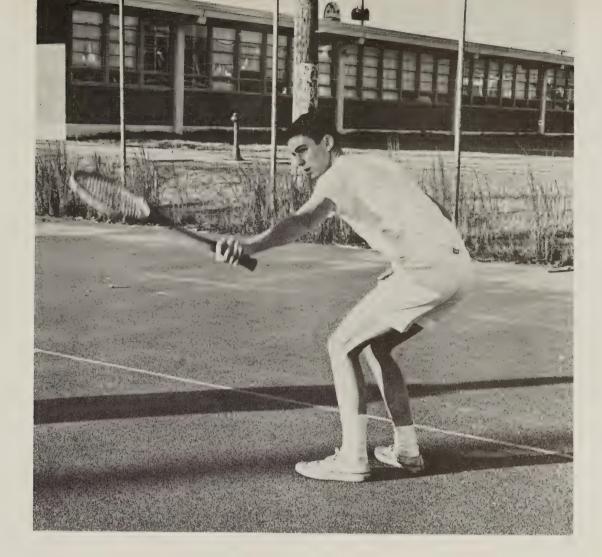

While April opened into May and May became June, Rebels entered the flurry of activities that filled the few remaining weeks of school. Scientific-minded students worked frantically to meet the deadline on biology, chemistry, and physics projects. Upon completing them, they exhibited the results of their work and competed for prizes in the Science Fair. A few days later, muffled sounds floated upstairs from the cafeteria. These were the voices of Rebelettes practicing for the day on which students would select new varsity cheerleaders. Hopeful aspirants' faces reflected joy and despair in turn as the lists of semi-finalists, then of finalists appeared. The 1962-63 squad heard the announcement of their selection at the May dance.

Candidates for SCA offices chose their campaign managers and began working toward their goal. Rebels, supporting their favorites, made posters and banners to cover the walls, and multi-colored pins, which they distributed to fellow students. Election day arrived; Freemanites listened to campaign speeches, then entered the privacy of voting booths to mark their ballots.

On the baseball diamond, powerful hitters and fleet base runners played an exciting game for spectators, who cheered at hard-hit balls and groaned at errors.

Final exams only slightly bothered Rebels caught up in their own musings over their futures. This year's sophomores would no longer be the youngest class; juniors, when September had come, would be high school seniors; and the seniors, leaving for jobs and college, would soon look upon DSF as a memory.

Organizations cover the broadening field of activities at DSF

Clubs and organizations touch all facets of students' interests at DSF. While some Rebels work for their school and community through service organizations, others in language clubs study foreign cultures. Advocates of journalism put out a newspaper and a yearbook. Through a network of channels into homerooms and to individual students, the Student Cooperative Association carries on its duties. No matter what a Rebel's interests, from science to debating, from art to playing chess, he can pursue them in a group. Organizations meet their challenge when they offer the student a way to broaden his world.

Progressive SCA designs new executive council

SCA OFFICERS BOB ACKERLY AND ANN GORDON JENKINS study convention plans for fellow club members' April trip.

Tomorrow begins today! That was the theme for the Student Cooperative Association Convention at Douglas Freeman. Mr. Vincent Cuervo, a new Spanish teacher from Cuba, spoke on the threat of communism. Carolyn Hitt planned the program for discussion and debates on world affairs for the course of the day, November 18, as twenty-five speakers came from different parts of Virginia for the convention.

This year the SCA had a fifth period study hall which planned and presented "This was your life, Charlie Cheater" for the honor code assembly, after which the sophomore class and transfers had a chance to sign the Honor Code. Under the supervision of Miss Ada Land and Miss Rose Frost, the SCA advisers, a sixmember board, enlarged the SCA council. The student body elected Anne Askew, Joe Kent, Susan Thomas, Mauna Gray, Judy Leard and Beverly Ledford to preside on the executive council. For the school year of '62 Bob Ackerly, president; Rick Irby, vice-president; Fran Jarrett, secretary; and Ann Gordon Jenkins, treasurer, governed the SCA. This year the junior class and SCA joined together for Talent Night with Paul Waddy and Fran Jarrett as co-chairmen for the production on March 30-31. Sophomores had the benefit of the Rebel yell which the SCA sold to guide bewildered students. SCA also aided the PTA in the sale of aluminum foil for the Christmas season.

Service, character, leadership, and scholarship: these are the four necessary qualifications for membership in the National Honor Society. Made up of both juniors and seniors, the society requires at least a ninety-two average for membership.

The NHS honored twenty-one seniors at the fall tapping. Tapped at the spring ceremony were senior Sandy Tutwiler and juniors John Graham, Tom Thurston, Neil Carey, Marcia Seume, Carol Ann Shaffer, Marcia Galumbeck, Beth Glaser, Pat Caver, Marty Crammé, Susan Brown, Susan Marmon, and Anne Betts. Held in the auditorium before the student body, the programs acquainted Rebels with the aims of the club and qualifications for membership. Following the tapping ceremonies, new members and their parents attended a reception in the library.

The society began a new fund-raising project this year. Members collected Dulany frozen food wrappers.

Homecoming and the Homecoming parade provided activities for the club. A red and white convertible, trimmed with blue and gold paper, carried the NHS Homecoming princess, Betsy Garber.

Officers for the year were Carolyn Hitt, president; Penny Sanford, vice-president; Joe Kent, secretary; and Bill Jones, treasurer. Miss Dot Jordan served as the club's adviser.

Chess matches are held with area high schools

Slowly the drama of the battle unfolded. Chessman moved forward and backward, advancing and retreating. Suddenly the queen moved across the board. "Checkmate!" roared the triumphant Rebel, as his opponent stared in bewilderment.

These sights and sounds often occurred as members of the Douglas Freeman Chess Club met for their Wednesday afternoon meetings. Rebels interested in chess descended upon room 216 at 3:33.

In addition to games between club members, Rebels met with area schools. Matches with John Marshall, Highland Springs, Thomas Jefferson, and George Wythe High Schools gave Rebels experience in playing chess. Members took an active part and received beneficial aid in the formation of this chess competition among area high schools. The league will, in the future, schedule chess matches among these schools and rule on any questions which may arise concerning the game.

Chess was not the only activity in which members of the club participated. At homecoming, Carolyn Jones rode the club float, which displayed a chessboard and chessmen

The club, organized four years ago, allows interested Rebels to learn the rules and techniques of the game of chess. Matches are held with a definite time limit to each move and game. The club achieved a record of one win and four losses this year.

KVG's assist Henrico County fire fighters

"Grab that fire rake! Dig that fire lane!" These were the instructions that the Douglas Freeman KVG's had as they joined in, for the fifth time, the Henrico County KVG competition, in which they placed second. The objective of this competition was to put the boys into simulated fire fighting conditions where a combination of teamwork, safety in handling of fire fighting tools, and knowledge of proper fire fighting methods were tested.

The Douglas Freeman KVG's advised by Mr. Richard Anthony, are connected with the Virginia State Forest Commission. Members learned through experience the proper fire fighting techniques in modern fire fighting. Often the boys assisted the Henrico County Fire Department in fighting woods fires. In such cases the boys, by consent of principal W. Howard Mears, left school with Mr. Anthony and joined in the fire fighting. For this service the boys were considered volunteer firemen and earn fifty cents for each hour they help. During the five years of their existence, members have assisted in extinguishing many forest fires.

Membership in the club is open to any boy fifteen or more years old with an interest in keeping Virginia's countryside green through preservation of wildlife and conservation of state forest.

D.V.—these initials, strange to many DSF students, are not to the students of Miss Marlise Bok, German teacher. Meeting every month, the Deutscher Verein, or German Club is DSF's youngest language club; it is made up of students from all three years of German.

The year's activities for the Deutscher Verein began with the Homecoming Parade. The cleverly disguised Volkswagen, with its passengers Renee Muller and Jay Wilson clad in colorful, though chilly, costumes, simulated a delightful old German "Haus."

The Deuscher Verein's programs helped to advance the club's aim to promote an interest in German. Of special note were two films recounting the lives of famous German composers, Beethoven and Mozart.

When Language Week arrived, one could see signs of the German Club's activities. Bulletin boards, showcases, menus, strange in their wording to most students, were readily understandable to club members.

Activities included projects; these were a scrapbook, a record of all the club's activities, and subscriptions to several German publications.

Rebels show growing interest in Spanish

Spanish Club members announced the beginning of Language Emphasis Week as their strains of "Immortal America" drifted throughout the auditorium. Under the direction of new Spanish teacher, Mr. Vincent Cuervo, Rebels sang of the freedom of America.

This spring Douglas Freeman formed a National Honor Society for Spanish students, the only local chapter in existence. The group, composed of students with outstanding academic achievement and a sincere interest in the language, met after school for discussions.

Familiar Spanish phrases emanated from Mr. Cuervo's room each Thursday afternoon as interested Spanish students met to improve their conversational Spanish. Rebels became better acquainted with every day expressions of the Latin American people.

Midst an array of sarapes and sombreros, Betty Jean Highfill represented the club in the Homecoming Festivities. The typical "South of the Border" picture brought a bit of warmth to the chilly night air.

"Gai Paree" float wins top homecoming honor

Champagne bottles, coquettes, and can-can girls, carrying out the theme of "Gai Paree," adorned the French Club float and brought first place honors to the club in the Homecoming parade. Pam Privette and Patsy Wilcox, can-can dancers, aided by club princess Helen Maynard, brought the reality of Paris life to the many spectators at the game.

Topping the agenda of the French Club for the year was Miss Hope Abner's talk about her motorcycle trip through Italy, Paris, and most of southern France. Anecdotes of her adventures on the tour and her descriptions of the country gave the members of the French Club an insight into the life and people of French cities and villages.

Undertaken this year by the French Club was the writing of a constitution. The officers and members stated formally the aims of the club, the basis for membership, the election of officers, and the general procedures for conducting business. French Club members also decided to begin a French Honor Society this year.

Mrs. Pauline Roberston was adviser of the club this year, with Wayne Rice, president, and Agnes Brown vice-president. Martha Crammé was secretary and Helen Maynard, treasurer.

Etruscan talk welcomes new Latin Club members

CHERRY WOLSTENHOLME AND ANN JENKINS ponder the identity of fellow Latin Club members at the annual initiation.

The Saturnalia, a pagan festival once held in old Rome, was the theme of the Latin Club's annual Christmas party. The slaves, persons inducted into the club in the fall, provided the entertainment, a classical dance done to rock and roll music. Slavemaster Donald Nelson sold the slaves to Roman costumed members.

In the spring, the club chose more new members at the annual tapping assembly. Representing the four years of Latin, Carol Ann Shaffer, Jerry Howard, Ann Lyon, and Harriet Mann spoke to the students on the study of Latin. Later in the spring, the club inducted the new members at a Roman Banquet.

At one of the afternoon meetings, Page Moran showed color slides of places that she had seen in Italy during a summer visit. In February Latin Club members took a trip to the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts to see the Mediterranean Gallery. Then in March, Miss Martha Caldwell, an archaeology professor at Westhampton College, spoke on the Etruscan civilization to newly initiated members at an informal tea held in the cafeteria.

Mrs. Evelyn Balthis advised the club. Charles Elliott and Harriet Mann served as consuls; Olivia Gibson, secretarius curatorium; Julian Bryant, quaestor; and Carole Cooper, censor.

Adviser elaborates on Biblical predictions

"Predictions in the Old Testament of Christ's Coming" was the topic which Mrs. Doris Hubbard, CYL adviser, discussed each morning during December with the Christian Youth League. Appropriate to the season, Mrs. Hubbard's presentation inspired CYL members to realize the full significance of Christmas.

For their Thanksgiving project, each of the CYL members constructed novelties with Scripture verses to take to the Crippled Children's Hospital, bringing the Thanksgiving spirit as well as enjoyment to each child.

At the Homecoming festivities, Christian Youth League's princess, Pat Pond, rode in a convertible with a Bible, constructed from cardboard, mounted on the front of the car. Inscribed on the pages in bold letters was the verse, "Remember now the days of thy youth," as a reminder to the CYL members of their responsibility to encourage others to unite in Christian worship, work, and fellowship.

Assisting the adviser, Mrs. Hubbard, were Marianne Phillips, president; Laurie Soyars, vice-president; Pat Pond, secretary; and Janet Blankschaen, treasurer.

Club sponsors drive for toys and usable clothing

HOME ECONOMICS STUDENTS, Betty Matthews and Nancy Foley, sell refreshments to Jane Harmon after an FHA film.

Rebel Future Homemakers sponsored a motherless three year old girl. This project gave the club a rewarding chance to learn not only about a young child but also about service to others, which is their main objective. Members donated their time to arranging a Christmas party for the motherless child during the holidays as well as to planning short trips and visits throughout the year for her.

At the beginning of the year, old members held a membership drive for those who were interested in joining and who were either enrolled in Home Economics or who had completed a full year's study. The engagement of two speakers—Mrs. O'Keefe, school nurse, who spoke on Child Care, and Mrs. Brockington, from a local garden club, who gave tips on decorating the home during the holidays—completed a part of the club's monthly 1961 - 1962 calendar.

As part of the pre-holiday activities of the club, members sponsored a drive for the collection of canned goods which they presented to Sheltering Arms Hospital; in addition the helped the Good Will Industries.

The adviser for the year was Mrs. Martha Perkins, assisted by Nancy Foley, president; Virginia Ripley, vice-president; Jean Eley, secretary; Susan Shackleford, treasurer; and Ann Brent, historian.

Mother - Daughter tea highlights club's year

For the first year at Douglas Freeman, senior members of the Medical Arts Club had the opportunity to work beside actual registered nurses as they took a course at the Wythe Building. Working with these nurses, the seniors became acquainted with every phase of nursing except that of giving medication.

At their monthly meetings, the club presented films on different fields of nursing including the work of dietitions, technicians, registered nurses, and on careers in the armed services.

Field trips, including a visit to the school of nursing at the University of Virginia and a tour of Richmond Memorial Hospital, filled the club's fall calendar. During the months prior to and following Christmas, the future Florence Nightingales stuffed animals for deserving children.

"One lump or two?" became a common question of most club members as they participated in the yearly spring Mother and Daughter Tea. At this year's tea, the Medical Arts Club selected several officers who assisted each other in fulfilling the club's activities. The club's choice for president was Betty Garner; vice-president, Anita Saxon; secretary, Barbara Smith; and treasurer, Daphne Ware. Mrs. Jeane O'Keefe, club adviser, supervised club activities.

FTA adds pleasure to parent visitation day

Did you want cream and sugar? During the day of the parent-teacher conference, future teachers of America served coffee and wafers to the parents and the teachers. The FTA held their meetings on Monday once a month, but because of unexpected weather, some of the business meetings had a change of schedule.

Mrs. Meadows, club sponsor, explained the meaning of the FTA club and made clear that FTA was for students interested in teaching. Rebels at Douglas Freeman had a chance to learn about the teaching profession and about its opportunities.

If anyone in the FTA did not eat Dulaney frozen foods, she switched brands because members of the FTA saved frozen food wrappers to raise money.

Laurie Soyars joined the other princesses to ride in the Homecoming parade on the festive FTA float. Laurie rode in style with her red school house and school supplies.

The officers for the 1962 school year were Pat Rooney, president; Dale Skydanek, vice-president; Nancy Culpeper, secretary; and Martha Crammé, treasurer.

FBLA Sweetheart Dance attracts Rebels

Hearts and spangles dangled from the ceiling of the cafeteria as the annual FBLA Sweetheart Dance began. With music supplied by Nelson Pruden and the Lo-Jos, Rebels enjoyed a night of dancing and fun. Sophomore Evelyn Perham reigned as the 1962 FBLA Sweetheart for the evening.

Connie Pintavalle represented the FBLA as princess in Homecoming activities. Club members transformed a white Mercury into a blue and gold float.

At the annual convention, held this year at Mary Washington College, FBLA clubs all over the state participated. At this convention Rebels submitted a scrapbook and posters telling of their progress.

The Future Business Leaders of America, an affiliate of the National Education Association, has as its objective to promote leadership in business. Because FBLA is primarily for students interested in business careers, requirements state that a student must be taking at least one business course.

Officers of the club were Pat Reynolds, president; Audrey Harris, vice-president; Sharon Price, treasurer; Susan Kessel, secretary; Diane Grubbs, parliamentarian; Judy Bradshaw, historian; and Susan Foltz, reporter. Mrs Neil Hillsman served as adviser. IN PREPARATION for their Sweetheart Dance, FBLA members Judi Johnson and Donna Spicer cut out hearts and cupids.

AMIDST AN ARRAY of test tubes and chemicals, Science Club princess Lynn Stonnell cheerily keeps her balance

After school research attracts DSF scientists

Long after the daily hub-bub of classroom participation had subsided, energetic Rebels could be found amid the test tubes and Bunsen burners in the laboratories of DSF. These students, part of the newly formed Science Club, worked after school to complete the research on their required projects. The students' hours of research and study proved beneficial as the Science Club members became eligible to compete in the annual Westinghouse Science Talent Search Contest. Seniors Jay Hereford, Jeanmary Soulis, John Easter, Gary Matuck, and Ralph Faulhaber took part in this contest and gained insight into the field of science.

The Science Club, a part of the Science Club of America and the Future Scientists of America, selected applicants on the basis of scholastic averages, department recommendations, and a genuine interest in a scientific career. Students from biology, chemistry, and physics classes were eligible for membership.

Mr. Charles Davis, chemistry teacher, was adviser of the organization. John Easter served as president, Jack Jordan as vice-president, Jean Freeman as secretary, and Rodney Smith as treasurer.

IN PREPARATION FOR NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK, Kay Land paints a large globe to signify literature all over the world.

Club's princess becomes Mademoiselle cover girl

Traditional library week at Freeman began early in the spring. Members decorated the halls with interesting bulletin boards and posters, reminding the students of the importance of reading. Members also presented an assembly for the entire school to help promote National Library Week.

This year the library offered the chance for those interested to become library assistants. Those chosen by the librarian became eligible to join the club by assisting the librarian one period a day in the operation of the library and also in helping to promote an interest in good reading.

Carolyn Hitt, the club's homecoming princess, impersonated the cover girl of Mademoiselle magazine. Well known magazine covers fashioned the rest of the float decor.

During Christmas members took Christmas cards to local day nurseries and entertained the children with a puppet show and stories. For one part of their program, Mrs. Engard demonstrated the art of table setting and flower arranging.

Mrs. Virginia Johnson, and Mrs. Lorraine Myers, served as advisers this year, assisted by president Linda Broyles, vice-president Barbara Sigman, secretary Jane Scott, and treasurer Kay Land.

Service club's displays reflect Rebel spirit

ARTIST GEANNE CLARK discusses the size and scale of poster lettering for an afternoon Art Service Club meeting.

With the gayly decorated bulletin boards, a project of the Art Service Club, the DSF corridors mirrored the Yule spirit felt by students. Angels, Christmas tree balls, and the Three Wise Men graced the main hall as the long awaited Christmas vacation drew near. A large red candle standing outside the auditorium expressed the Merry Christmas wish of every Rebel.

Throughout the entire year the Art Service Club kept the bulletin boards attractively decorated. A large gold ring announced the arrival of class rings; red and white hearts reminded Rebels of the annual FBLA Sweetheart Dance.

Homecoming always presents an opportunity for display of the artistic talent of club members. This year, Dorothy Daille Pritchard, club princess, rode on a silver float with artist's palet and brush.

Club membership is open to anyone interested in doing neat, attractive art work. Periodically the club holds bake sales to raise money for art supplies.

Corinne Langhorne, president; Jane Mack, vice-president; and Linda Broyles, secretary, assisted Miss Virginia Moseley, art teacher and club adviser.

Y-Teens I raises money for college scholarship

Y-Teens Triangle I planned a progressive dinner to which everyone brought a prepared dish from home. The menu varied from pizza to German chocolate cake. After the meal, Sally Gabb, a senior from Thomas Jefferson, told of her stay in Japan with a Japanese family for three months.

Claxton fruitcake became a familiar name as Triangle I raised money for the scholarship fund for some worthy senior girl by selling fruitcakes before Christmas season. The YWCA sponsored a slave bond sale to help foreign exchange students come to the United States. As a money-making project, shifts of girls from Triangle I sold food at the Halloween party at the Westhampton playground. Starting off the new year, Reverend Jim Lincoln from the Episcopal Diocese spoke on truth and what life brings forth.

Members planned a trip to the Home for the Incurables every weekend. Over the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, Y-Teens fixed a basket of food and boxes of cookies to take to the home; and at Christmas, Y-Teens, the Key Club, and the Hi-Y went caroling at McGuire Hospital. Y-Teens also gave each student an honor code card at the honor code assemblies and held a spring fashion show in early April.

Y-Teens donate $100 to DSF's library fund

On a brisk evening in early November, Homecoming Princess Joan Weiler represented Y-Teens Triangle II on a float marked with a large triangle and globe.

Later in November, the members of Triangle II gave a Thanksgiving party for the youths at the Methodist Children's Home. Their next project involved the collection of bright animal pictures which they assembled into scrapbooks for the Crippled Children's Hospital.

These Y-Teens gathered old Christmas cards, wrote Biblical verses on them in several languages, and gave them to missionaries of various religious affiliations.

Robin Crammé, an alumna of Douglas Freeman and a student at Westhampton College, spoke to the Triangle on differences between high school and college. At a later meeting, Mrs. Katie Grandstaff talked about Y-Teens and what they represent. "What are you worth?" was the topic of Mr. Merle Reynolds, who spoke to the Triangle in early February.

As their final project for the year, Y-Teens II donated $100 to DSF's library.

Work and service bring reward to Y-Teens III

Y-Teen Triangle Three's advisers and members, realizing their need for a clearly stated constitution, worked toward this accomplishment.

The club's first project of the year seemed gratifying to the members as Triangle Three walked away with the honors when their float won second place at DSF's Homecoming. A talk on the Y-Teens goals, presented by Mrs. Katie Grandstaff, district supervisor for Y-Teens, started the club's activities.

November was a busy month for the club members as they filled Thanksgiving baskets for the needy in the Richmond area. Following Thanksgiving, Y-Teens started on their big project of the year as they adopted a family for Christmas.

Another project was volunteer work at Sheltering Arms Hospital. Members offered their time and efforts by aiding the nurses.

Mrs. Itasca Mapp and Mrs. June Dickens advised the activities and projects of the club. Mary Anita Whitworth, president, Pat Caver, vice-president, Nancy Culpeper, secretary, Rae Garber, treasurer, and Sally Rice, sergeant-at-arms, assisted them.

PAINT BRUSH IN HAND, Key Clubber Bruce Mann spends his Saturday morning painting lines in the Freeman parking lot.

Club member restore lines in parking lot

Carrying brushes and paint, members of the Douglas Freeman Key Club descended upon the front parking lot. Chalk lines were drawn on the curb. Paint brushes were dipped into the thick yellow paint. Soon yellow lines separated individual parking spaces.

Key Clubbers cared for the school grounds, removing weeds and crab grass growing along the edge of the sidewalks. Before Christmas the boys distributed posters supporting the Christmas Seals, and later aided the collection for the March of Dimes.

On Wednesday nights members returned to DSF to take part in interesting and informative programs. As the date for the orbital shot of the first U. S. man-inspace drew near, the Key Club sponsored a program presenting Project Mercury. Mr. John McNaught, an engineer for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, spoke and showed films explaining the importance of Project Mercury.

Officers for the year were Robert Walton, president; Paul Waddy, vice-president; Joe Kent, secretary; and Ed Beck, treasurer. Advising the Key Club was Mr. D. E. Baggett. The Key Club Sweetheart, Anne Askew, represented the club in Homecoming.

Hi-Y members present pins to cheerleaders

For one night Hi-Y members became Mothers! That is, they helped to collect for the Mother's March of Dimes in the Keswick Garden Apartments and at the 5100. This was only one of the many service projects which the club performed during the year. Another was collecting food baskets for the needy at Thanksgiving and again at Christmas. At Thanksgiving the club members took charge of the assembly as they led the students in the singing of Thanksgiving songs. Every day at lunch time the cafeteria noise subsided for a moment as Freemanites united in prayer while Hi-Y members offered the blessing over the public address system.

To promote school spirit during the pep rallies, the Hi-Y members, sitting together as a group, passed around among themselves large posters which wished the Freeman team good luck and success in their game. In honor of the cheerleaders at the football awards assembly, the Hi-Y presented each member of the squad with a sterling silver pin in the shape of a megaphone.

At Christmas the Hi-Y joined the Key Club and the Y-Teens Triangle members in singing Christmas carols at McGuire's Hospital. In the spring the club held its annual picnic.

Under the direction of Mr. Fred Wells, the officers who served the club were Bill Jones, president; Dave Lewis, vice-president; Tommy Herbert, secretary; George Nolde, treasurer; Wilburn Hatcher, sergeant-at-arms; and Tom Pate, chaplain.

Triple Trio rides in parade despite mix-up

"Has anybody seen the Downbeat float?" shouted the weary members of the triple trio as they paraded up and down Bexhill Road. Despite the last minute confusion, the Downbeats made their appearance in the Homecoming parade clad in their new gold flared skirts and vests with contrasting print blouses.

Homecoming was just the beginning of a busy year for the Downbeats. They sang twice for the Tuckahoe Optimist Club breakfasts held weekly at the Executive Motor Hotel. In February the girls sang on WRNL's Youth Parade radio program. They also visited the Home For Incurables and McGuires Hospital.

The vocalists entertained the PTA one evening as a part of the program of the SCA. They sang for the Hermitage Caliopian Club, a club composed of the best musicians at Hermitage High School. Popular music was their choice for Junior Talent Night as the Downbeats blended their own harmony of such current hits as "Cottonfields" and "When I Fall in Love."

Music drifted from the auditorium every Monday as the girls practiced to learn new songs and polish old ones. With the aid of their adviser, Miss Dorthea Moore, the Downbeats worked on phrasing and volume.

Janet Trimm served as the club's president. Mary Lou Richardson, secretary-treasurer, and Pat Saunders, historian, assisted her.

Glee Club presents "Leave it to Jane"

As the Christmas vacation approached the A Cappella Choir entertained Rebels by singing holiday carols as they strolled through the halls. Unknown to many students, the choir had just completed a Christmas program on radio station WMBG.

Mr. Hunter Purdie, music director, selected nine members of the choir to attend the All-State Chorus held in Febrary at RPI.

In March, Douglas Freeman played host to the State Music Festival. Glee Clubs from high schools throught-out Virginia attended the festival to be rated according to their talent in the art of music. As in the past, Douglas Freeman's Glee Club received a superior rating from the judges.

Twenty-two singers from the Choir participated in the newly formed "Swingin' Twenties" group. The group sang music arranged by Mr. Purdie.

Under the direction of Mr. Hunter Purdie and English teacher, Miss Jeanne Saunders, Rebels performed the operetta, "Leave It to Jane" this spring.

With Mr. Purdie as director, Pam Curtis served as president; Crystal Winston, vice-president; Carol Gibson, secretary; Carol McCann, treasurer; Buster Batts, Dennis Phelps, Karen Howell, librarians.

"Dixie" arouses school spirit at home games

As Rebel students diligently tried to attend to their studies this fall, they frequently found themselves tapping their pencils in time to the music provided by the Douglas Freeman marching band, which practiced every morning out in the parking lot, on the athletic field and all around school. To the students these practices marked the preparation for the band's playing at Rebel pep rallies and half-time of Rebel football games. It was through the Rebel tune "Dixie" that the band raised student spirit.

The Rebel band showed this same kind of enthusiasm when they traveled to Charlottesville in November to participate in the University of Virginia's annual Band Day, in which thirty state bands participated. In February fourteen band members represented Douglas Freeman in the central all-state band concert held at Huguenot High School.

Accompanying the band, the majorettes appeared in the annual Tobacco Bowl parade and the Thalhimers Toy parade with Beverly Williamson as head majorette and Jana Privette as the drum majorette. The majorettes led the DSF band in all the half-time performances.

Mr Hunter Purdie directed the band, with Bob Larmore as president, David Norton as vice-president, and Jana Privette as secretary-treasurer.

U. Va. invites chorus to sing during halftime

Half-time activites at a fall U. Va. football game spotlighted the events of the year for the girls' chorus. Along with other high school state bands and choruses, Douglas Freeman's girls' chorus sang during the University of Virginia's annual mid-game festivities.

At the beginning of the year, Mr. Hunter Purdie auditioned those girls interested in joining, and he chose the finalists from these,

During the year stress was placed on choral appreciation along with the development of choral techniques. Each morning, during first period, the girls met in the band room under the direction of Mr. Purdie in order to work on and improve their presentation.

For two consecutive years, Robbie Melworth has been librarian in charge of the distribution of music sheets and of the storage of these scores. This year, for the first time, Robbie was aided by two other girls, sophomore Bonnie Close and junior Ann Brown.

Officers for the past year were Betty Jo Hamner, president, assisted by Martha Murdock, vice-president, and Pat Mason, secretary.

Debate Club attends state Forensics meet

For the first time in the history of the school, DSF formed an organized Debate Club. It strove to train students in research, analysis, sound argument, quick thinking, and effective competitive speaking.

Mrs. Rosemary Friend, club adviser, selected eight students to work on the national debate topic. From this group four representatives entered the Virginia Forensics Contest. This year for the first time in four years, Douglas Freeman had representatives in the debating division of the forensics contest.

At each club meeting four members discussed the current national debate subjects. During March Rebels held a debate pertaining to federal aid for public education with George Wythe.

The club attended two conferences this year, at Charlottesville in February and at the University of Richmond in March.

On February 15, Dr. Bert Bradley, a teacher at the University of Richmond, brought his debate team to Douglas Freeman to put on a debate for the DSF Debate Club and to show them new techniques with their presentation.

With Mrs. Friend as their adviser, the Debate Club elected Bruce Mann president; Jay Pace, vice-president; and Linda Broyles, secretary.

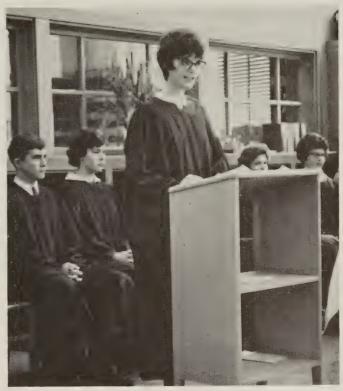

Quill and Scroll holds first library tapping

"The tapping ceremony will now begin." President Martha Toler delivered this familiar phrase in a setting unfamiliar for the ceremony. For the first time in the six-year history of the club, the society held its fall tapping in the library. Here juniors and seniors from the business and literary staffs of each publication assembled. In chairs on the main floor, excited candidates sat nervously, unaware that their parents watched from chairs on the balcony.

The Quill and Scroll taps members from candidates on the newspaper or yearbook staffs, who have done superior work in either field of journalistic endeavor. Scholastic average further screens aspirants, a "B" average or rank in the upper third of the individual's class being necessary for membership in this club. The DSF board of publications determines the final approval.

Quill and Scroll sponsored the annual Eastman Kodak High School Photo Contest at Douglas Freeman with an exhibition of superior photographs taken by high school students throughout the United States. Another national contest, sponsored by the Quill and Scroll, was the Current Events Quiz given in March.

President Martha Toler and vice-president George Burke were the club's only officers. Miss Jean Saunders and Miss Marian Breeden served as advisers.

Click, click, click. The only sound of the Commentator "think factory" echoed into the hall. As the lone typewriter banged out its rhythm, busy "Tators" labored over countless headlines, captions, and stories using all their journalistic talents.

The Commentator literary staff, working at least ten afternoons per issue and every day during sixth period, followed a tight schedule of five issues per semester. Operating on an expanded budget, the journalists were able to use more photographs and special layouts than ever before. Also executed was a more comprehensive program to take advantage of the critique services offered by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association and the Southern Interscholastic Press Association.

On March 14, six Commentator editors and Miss Carolyn Baker made the annual trip to the Columbia Scholastic Press Association convention in New York City. 'Torians emphasize photographs, new ideas

Snap! Another photo joined the ever increasing pictorial file of the '62 Historian. When veteran Rebel photographers Ray Saunders and Tom Thurston returned from summer vacations, they found a new emphasis placed on yearbook photography. Using Thurston's darkroom, both worked day and night to develop snapshots depicting classroom, extracurricular, and athletic activities. In addition to this task the two photographers also took group pictures of the faculty and of school organizations.

Carol Ann Shaffer, Historian ad section editor, used a new concept to produce a blending of caption and copy in the pictorial ads. Canvassing the city for ads, handling the subscription drive, and balancing the books were the all important jobs of the business staff headed by Brenda Stroud. Again the Commentator and Historian joined hands in their subscription drives as both staffs worked together to sell the DSF publications to the student body.

The '62 Historian was started late in the summer of 1961 when members of the literary staff met and decided upon a theme. Associate editor Barbara Green then began correspondence with the Kingscraft Company, manufacturers of the yearbook covers. Combining colors and designs, Barbara and her assistants decided upon an appropriate cover for the book which in June would be the completed 1962 Historian.

One challenge leads to others in athletics at Douglas Freeman

Athletics at DSF are a series of challenging goals. Victory beckoning is the challenge to the basketball forward as he heaves the tiebreaking shot toward its target while the clock ticks off closing seconds of the game's final period. Ambition, pushing and pulling, is the challenge to the runner who ignores the pain in his lungs as he strives to break last year's mile record. Accomplishment is the challenge ahead for the wrestler who hopes that the difficult hold he has mastered will pin his opponent. Each of these things is important to a Rebel athlete, and they encourage him to excel.

Rebels' coaching staff adds three new mentors

This year the DSF athletic department inaugurated a longer season for each sport. The Rebel athletic squads participated in a total of 134 contests.

In August the football team began its practice under varsity coaches W. E. Long, Ray Long and Fred Wells, while new coach J. W. Lewis handled JV coaching.

Basketball was highlighted by an 18 game schedule. Coach Jon Massello guided the cagers with the able assistance of Carl Koenig, a first year man at DSF. Fred Wells coached the jayvee cagers to an 18-0 season. Ray Long started new tactics this year with the Rebel grapplers by inaugurating a junior varsity team. The varsity team amassed its first undefeated season.

In the spring Mr. Massello coached the varsity base-ball team while Mr. Koenig took command of the junior varsity team. The track team was once again directed by W. E. Long, with Fred Wells as assistant. The Rebel harriers scheduled the Duke-Durham Relays at Durham, North Carolina, as a high point to the season.

Another new face at DSF was that of Miss June Gray. Miss Gray led both the girls' varsity and junior varsity basketball teams through a fine fall season.

Miss Florence Lawrence again sponsored the cheerleaders. This year the varsity cheerleaders won the annual Thalhimers Cheer Rally under her direction.

Rebels amass 8-2 record for third in district

The 1961 Douglas Freeman football squad, led by its All-Central District co-captains, Frank Bowman and Bill Jones, compiled an 8-2 record for its best Group I season. The well balanced Rebel team also placed three other members, Pete Tosh, Penn Lemmonds and Don Plageman, on the second All-District team.

Leading at halftime in only two of their ten contests, the big Gray used a come-from-behind effort for five of their eight victories to capture third place in the Central District.

ALBEMARLE SEPTEMBER 15 25-6

Opening the season before 900 spectators on their home field, the 1961 Rebels routed Group 1-B Albemarle. Quarterback Jack Frazee, halfback Bob Mahone, fullback Bowman and end Henry Webb hit the scoring column with one touchdown each.

MANCHESTER SEPTEMBER 23 25-0

The Blue and Gray offense, using only basic bread and butter plays, rolled up 259 yards rushing while a stubborn defense held the Lancers to 31 yards. With Bowman and Mahone acting as workhorses, the Rebels pushed over a touchdown in each of the first two periods as well as two in the final period.

HERMITAGE SEPTEMBER 30 12-7

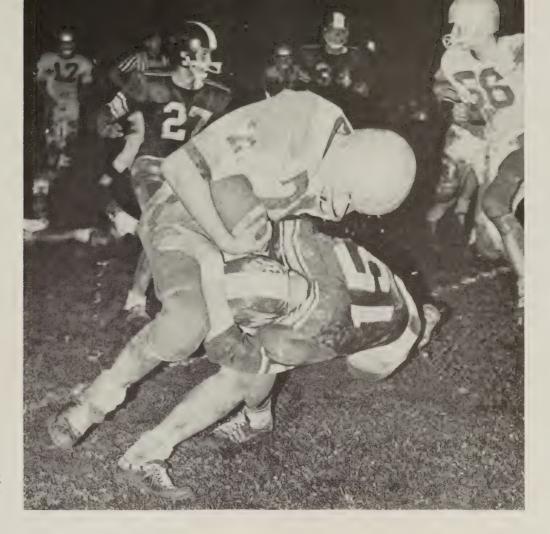

A fired-up Rebel eleven, operating without quarter-back Frazee, injured in pre-game practice, handed archrival Hermitage its first defeat in 16 games. The Panthers scored first, but the Rebels struck back, tallying on a 20-yard pass play from junior quarterback Rick Irby to Mahone. The big Gray trailed 7-6 until a 62 yard touchdown drive in the final quarter, with Bowman bulling over from the 2, provided the margin of victory.

THOMAS JEFFERSON OCTOBER 7 6-0

The unbeaten Rebels took the field at City Stadium to face a crippled Tee-Jay eleven. It was a black night for the Gray offense, as the Beltliners held the Rebel rushers to one-first down in the first half. After three Jeff drives deep into Rebel territory were snuffed, Bowman dove over right guard for the lone tally of the evening, drowning Tee-Jay's hopes of becoming a giant killer.

next barrier in the path of the streaking Rebels. Trailing by 14 points late in the second quarter, the stunned Rebs finally scored on Mahone's 9 yard power sweep around left end. The fired-up DSF eleven took the second half kickoff and marched 67 yards for another tally. In the fourth period the big Gray put together a final drive capped by Irby's quarterback sneak from the 1 for the winning touchdown.

JOHN MARSHALL OCTOBER 27 24-14

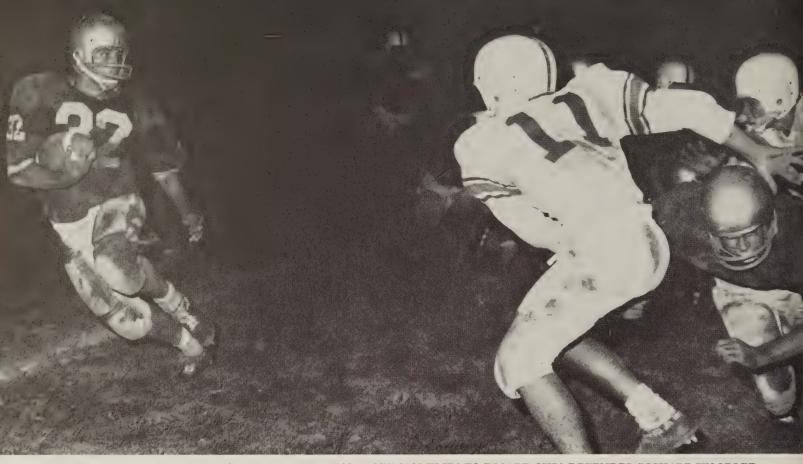

Following a weekend of rest, the Rebels returned to begin the second half of their season against John Marshall. With Bowman as a decoy, Rebel halfbacks Johnny Freeman and Cameron Gray became the workhorses of the Blue and Gray offense. Gray was the first to score, scampering 75 yards over right tackle. Freeman scored on an 8 yard sweep to put the Rebels ahead 12-7 at the half. Following the Justices' score on the first play from scrimmage in the second half, the Rebels pushed over a touchdown in each of the final two periods to cop the win.

THOMAS DALE NOVEMBER 3 21-0

The impregnable DSF defense played its best game of the year, holding the Knights in their own territory until late in the fourth period. The offense, sparked by Bowman and Freeman, marched up and down the rain-soaked field with Bowman scoring all three touchdowns on rushes of 11, 5, and 1 yards.

AFTER ELUDING A JEFF DEFENDER, sophomore halfback Cameron Gray finds an opening for a short gain around right end.

LANE NOVEMBER 10 13-7

An inspired Lane eleven staged a determined effort to dampen DSF Homecoming festivities with a near upset over the big Gray. The Black Knights capitalized on a Rebel fumble inside the DSF fifteen to score the first touchdown. Late in the half, Freeman grabbed a screen pass from Irby and traveled 52 yards for a Rebel six pointer. With five minutes left in the fourth quarter, Bowman ripped from the one into the end zone for the tie breaker.

HIGHLAND SPRINGS NOVEMBER 17 0-24

Douglas Freeman totaled 117 yards on the ground to Highland Springs' 77, controlled the ball on 66 of 104 plays, but lost to the soon-to-become Group 1-A State Champions, 0-24. Although Bowman and Gray occasionally sliced through the Springer line, the Rebels were unable to muster a touchdown drive. The DSF defense was ineffective against a savage Springer passing attack which accounted for 144 yards, and all four touchdowns.

PETERSBURG NOVEMBER 22 13-14

Although Petersburg scored first, the Blue and Gray struck twice before the half to lead 13-7 at intermission. In the third quarter, however, the Crimson Wave tallied on a 32 yard pass interception and scored the extra point. Although the Rebels drove deep into Wave territory in the game's closing mintues, a fumble stopped the drive and the clock ran out with Petersburg in possession of the ball.

Height, speed bring success to hoopsters

The tall, talented 1961 - 62 Rebel cagers amassed a 10 - 8 district record and a 12 - 9 over-all record for their best finish in three years. Tagged as a fast breaking ball team by pre-season odds makers, coach Jon Massello's triple quintet relied upon tremendous height, speed, and a solid bench to carry them through the upset-battered Central District.

Buster Batts, 6' 7" junior transfer, and Lindley Smith, a 6' 6" two year veteran, supplied the height, while speedsters Willie Maples and Roger Walton added the one-two punch which stunned Central District foes. 6' 4" senior Frank Duss, a consistent sharpshooter and an All-Central District second team choice, strengthened the nucleus of the Rebel attack.

The unfortunate mid-season loss of Tom Holloway produced a new talent from the DSF bench. Filling in for the ineligible Holloway, 6' 4" Donnie Plageman quickly became a starting member of the DSF squad. Plageman and senior guard Richard Jainchell, another late season standout, were part of a strong Rebel bench.

Seniors Frank Bowman, Jack Frazee, and Bob Ackerly, and juniors Craig Lea, Edwin Pate, and Zeke King rotated with the starting five throughout the season. Buddy Reams, who started on two occasions, joined with another varsity sophomore, Butch Treadway, to complete the Rebel bench.

Fourth seeded Rebels win second in tourney

Inconsistency was the greatest contributor to the Rebel defeats. The Rebs split games with Highland Springs, Thomas Jefferson, and Hermitage during regular season play. Following a strong start and a weak midseason, the big Gray exploded for three straight victories and a close loss to Hopewell in the last game.

2500 fans packed the arena to watch four teams complete two preliminary elimition games for the Central District Tournament championship. DSF, playing Hopewell, whom they had failed to defeat in two previous matches, shocked the fans, newscasters, and students by running away with the ball game. The scorehungry Rebs grabbed and held a 15 point advantage through the second half to eliminate the Blue Devils.

In the semifinals the DSF cagers ran up an eight point lead against Hermitage, the Central District champions; however, the short-lived lead dwindled to four points at the half and disappeared in the third quarter. The Panthers seemed on their way to a berth in the finals until the Rebs blasted back in the waning seconds of the contest to pull the only major upset of the tournament. Out-hustled on the floor and out-shot at the foul line, the Blue and Gray hoopsters lost the chamionship to Highland Springs.

Teamwork, new coach spark girl hoopsters

The 1961 girls' varsity basketball team compiled a 5-7 record under new head coach June Gray. With five girls returning from last year's varsity squad, the experienced Rebelettes started quickly with three victories. In these first three contests the girl cagers squeezed by Manchester 26-24, defeated Thomas Dale 38-31, and clobbered Varina 35-3. Of the remaining nine contests the team managed two victories, upending Manchester 28-25 and Varina 28-12.

With an improvement of three victories over last year's record, the Rebelettes employed the offensive punch of Betsy Garber and Marty Crammé. Betsy, a senior competing in her second varsity season, finished the campaign with an average of 10.9 points per game. Junior Marty Crammé followed closely with 122 points and a 10.1 average in her first year on the varsity. Doris Burnette and Carolyn Brewster alternated in assisting the two scoring leaders on the offensive end of the court.

The girl's junior varsity squad displayed a successful balance of offensive power during their first undefeated, untied season. Pacing the JV Rebelettes to five victories, Suzanne Bracey, Virginia Burkett and Kathy Stone held the starting offensive positions. The defense, in equaling the offense, allowed an average of 15.4 points per game.

Rebel matmen attain first undefeated season

In compiling an 8-0-1 record for their first undefeated wrestling season, the 1962 Douglas Freeman grapplers continued area domination for the sixth consecutive season. Under the direction of Coach Ray Long and co-captains Penn Lemmonds and Wilburn Hatcher the Rebels combined individual strength with teamwork for the perfect mark.

Following a season opening win over Metropolitan rival St. Christopher's, the matmen traveled to Newport News for a 27-27 match with the Warwick High grapplers. A weekend visit by two Roanoke squads, William Fleming and William Byrd, proved profitable as the Rebels extended their record to 3-0-1.

The grapplers next decisively defeated Woodberry Forest and Prince George before conquering a tough team from Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind 24-20. The Rebels finished off the season with second victories over Prince George and St. Christopher's to protect the undefeated mark.

The Central-Western Regional Tournament in Roan-oke, in which they placed sixth with 31 points, was next on the agenda for the streaking grapplers. Co-captain Hatcher placed first in the 123 pound class. Davy Street was second, and Davy Williams, Ricky Mears and Johnny Graham were fourth in their respective divisions. Hatcher was the only Rebel to place in the State Meet at Norview High School, but on the strength of his second place and points collected in preliminary rounds, the Rebels captured eleveth place.

The speedy Rebels also boosted their dual meet record to 28 wins by taking eight victories.

In their early season trip to Durham, North Carolina, the Rebels entered for the first time the Duke-Durham Relays sponsored by Duke University. They placed in every event they ran, winning four and setting two records to top their opponents from North and South Carolina. Bill Jones slashed the discus mark by over six feet with a toss of 152'1", and the distance medley team of Ben Blanton, Dave Fahy, Jack Frazee, and Joe Kent set the record in their event.

For the third time in the last four years, the thinclads won the Henrico County Meet, setting five county records. The powerful Rebs also amassed 59½ points to take the Central District crown for the second year in a row.

In their final dual meet against St Christopher, the Rebels toppled five school records. Jones cracked the discus mark with a 157' 103/4" toss, while Sophomore Dave Lewis ran the high hurdles in 14.9 seconds.

Climaxing their season's efforts, the Rebels produced their strongest showing in the State Meet, by scoring 16½ points for fifth place. Dave Lewis won the high hurdles and placed second in the lows. The mile relay team, led by Dave Anderson and Dave Fahy, won in 3:27.9, just .4 seconds off the state record.

The 1961 Rebel glovemen finished Douglas Freeman's most successful Group 1-A baseball season compiling a 5-8 won-loss record. Senior veterans Bruce Henry and Wayne Pugh, two of the Rebel representatives on the All-Central District second team, led the inexperienced starting squad.

Opening the season behind the pitching of sophomore Chuck Jacobs, the young Rebel team held favored Hermitage scoreless until the fourth inning; then Panther Tom Nuckols used a teammate's single to score the only run of the ball game.

Following their close game with the Panthers, the Rebs dropped three in a row losing decisively to Thomas Dale and to John Marshall and bowing again by one run to a district power, Manchester.

A winless Rebel squad took the field against undefeated George Wythe in the fifth game of the season. The inspired Rebs, with Jacobs on the mound relieving starting pitcher Ross Goode, broke a 6-6 tie in the eighth inning to beat the Bulldogs 9-6. Hopewell became the second DSF victim losing in a Rebel onslaught 17-5; but the short-lived winning streak ended with two consecutive defeats within a three day period at the hands of Petersburg and Highland Springs.

After defeating Hermitage in a late season rematch, the Blue and Gray finished the season with victories over John Marshall and George Wythe and losses to Manchester and Highland Springs, all by margins of one or two runs.

Second baseman Wayne Pugh was the leading batter with a .359 average. Bruce Henry and junior Ross Goode followed him with averages of .333 and .344 respectively. Rebel pitcher Chuck Jacobs joined Henry and Pugh on the All-Central District second team.

The 1961 Rebel Linksmen displayed one of the most balanced squads in the area by compiling a four-five won-lost record. The clubbers won at the expense of Saint Christopher's, Manchester, Petersburg, and Lane. In their only match at Lane, the Rebels defeated the Knights sixteen to two. Saint Christopher's and Manchester overcame Freeman by one match each, and a strong Thomas Jefferson squad defeated the Rebels fifteen to two in both meets.

In the first few conflicts of the season, early darkness hampered the clubbers. This made scores on the last two holes very difficult. In one match at Willow Oaks, Rebels braved a hard rain to defeat Manchester nineteen to five.

Underclassmen bolster Rebel netsmen's attack

Strengthened by the return of eight regulars, the Freeman netsmen boasted a 5-2 record at the end of the 1961 season. In their opening encounter against Hugue-enot, the Rebels caught fire in the first set and downed the Falcons by a 9-0 score.

DSF coach, J. D. Patton, relied chiefly on his more experienced players at the beginning of the season. The Rebels achieved their first two victories over Huguenot and Tee Jay by using good team work in the doubles matches and the bullet service of captain Monroe Baisden, along with the net play of Ruble Hord. Baisden, who paced the netters, placed third in scoring for the Richmond eighteen and under class.

As the season progressed, however, Patton gave the Rebel underclassmen valuable experience by regularly alternating his players. Each of the contests, with the exception of the two losses to St. Christopher's, was won by wide margins because of the team spirit exhibited by the Rebels.

Cheerleaders win annual Thalhimers Cheer Rally

AGED JO BENSON reads from her "Dear Dairy" tales of Homecoming 1962 to thumbsucking toddler Robin Williams.

The 1961-62 varsity cheerleaders continued once again to present their humorous skits and spirit-raising pep rallies. They also carried on the practice of holding early morning rallies on the days of football games in order to boost the Rebels' spirits into high gear.

Undoubtedly the most thrilling event to the cheerleaders was their winning of first place honors in the annual Thalhimers Cheer Rally at the George Wythe gym; it was their third win in the past five years.

The Rebelettes again took over the arrangements and preparations for the 1961 Homecoming festivities. In January DSF cheerers, along with the cheerleaders from other area schools, gave their time to aid in the March of Dimes drive by collecting a "Block of Dimes."

On February 16 the senior cheerleaders, accompanied by the seniors on the girls' basketball squad, went to Davis, West Virginia. There they spent two fun filled days at the Blackwater Falls ski lodge.

In the spring some of the junior and sophomore cheerleaders attended the second annual Virginia Cheer Clinic. An official of the National Cheerleaders Association instructed them in cheering techniques and crowd psychology.

The junior varsity cheerleaders enthusiastically supported the Rebel jayvee teams and added to the excitement of the pep rallies.

In the spring the juniors and sophomores competed for positions on next year's varsity squad. Graduating members of the cheering squad announced the 1962-63 varsity cheerleaders at the annual Cheerleaders' Dance.

In DSF classrooms, Rebels encounter the challenge of learning

The test of a classroom's usefulness at Douglas Freeman is the degree of challenge which a student finds there. His progress may be a slow uphill struggle or a swift downhill glide. Achievement is evident through the rustle of textbook pages, the buzz of classroom discussion, the quiet during an examination. The goal is accomplished when, at the final bell, a student goes out the door, admitting to himself that he knows more today than he did yesterday, and that he reached a conclusion by his own thinking.

MR. W. HOWARD MEARS, Principal

New responsibilities face administration

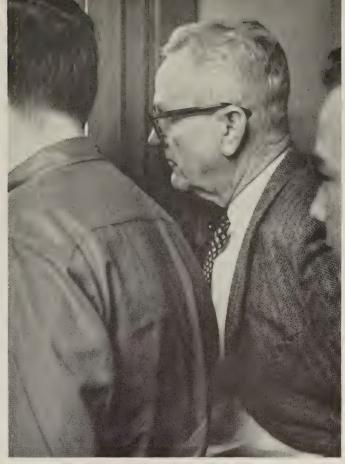

An increase of nine members to his staff and of an additional ten classrooms to the building presented growing responsibilities for Mr. W. Howard Mears this year. At conferences such as the annual meeting of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, Mr. Mears visited other schools and observed their solutions to problems of expansion. Mr. D. E. Baggett, in addition to serving as assistant principal, kept in close association with the students through his positions as sponsor of the Key Club and as head of the Science Department.

Douglas Freeman's guidance department increased this year as Mrs. Hardenia C. Zigler became sophomore adviser. She and Miss Glasselle Adams, adviser to juniors, administered the "SCAT" and "STEP" test.

"Open door before knocking." This sign for seniors graced the door of Miss Faye Hill's office in the new wing. Since her desk was so far from the thick door, any audible reply to a knock was impossible, and Miss Hill never liked to leave even a knock unanswered. She continually helped seniors schedule Scholastic Aptitude Tests and explained scholarship opportunities.

Growing student body causes office expansion

A new member of the secretarial trio greeted students as they entered the office each day. Mrs. Alice Culley, who became a member of the DSF faculty in the late fall, joined with Mrs. Virginia Saunders and Mrs. Marguerite Jones to complete the swelling ranks of the office staff. While all three performed the secretarial duties necessary to keep DSF's central nervous system functioning, each had specific tasks to perform.

Mrs. Saunders devoted hours of labor to the preparing and mailing of transcripts, the results of which college-bound students anxiously awaited.

Every extracurricular organization found itself dependent upon Mrs. Jones who handled all finances at DSF and maintained a second copy of each club's books. Initiating a new and more improved system of recording attendance, Mrs. Culley kept an absentee book, a tardy book, mimeographed the absentee sheet and supervised its distribution to the faculty.

Mrs. Jeanne O'Keefe assumed the responsibilities of school nurse for the fifth consecutive year. Victims of minor injuries sustained on gym apparatus, and sufferers of the latest viruses were among Mrs. O'Keefe's many patrons.

Library Week creates an interest in reading

"You don't stand a ghost of a chance unless you read" was one of the captions displayed on the seasonal library bulletin board. A hunchbacked black cat, a smiling face carved in a pumpkin, and the silhouette of a witch crossing a harvest moon completed the picture of an eerie Halloween night. Mrs. Meyers and the library assistants prepared these bulletin boards to encourage students to read an ever-increasing number of books. A colorful display table often tied in with the theme of the boards, emphasizing books parallel to curriculum, or making guidance material available.

The librarians were continually trying to make the library more efficient and modern. Through reviewing books for the State Department of Education, they became familiar with the more valuable reading material. As a member of the State Evaluation Committee for the Princess Anne High School, Mrs. Johnson spent two enlightening days observing their library and gathering ideas for improvement. Visual aids played a vital part in the library as a source of reference material. Six up-to-date political and physical globes and more than 30 assorted maps were added to this department.

The theme of the National Library Week was "Read and Watch Your World Grow." Scenes from books were presented to the student body during an audience participation assembly. Students gained the satisfaction of being able to recognize the novels.

Students enjoy new literature and grammar texts

MRS. MILDRED HARRIS SERVES Crystal Winston and class plum pudding to symbolize an English Christmas dessert.

In the honors English classes, teachers urged students to pursue their personal interests. They encouraged outside reading, and many classes studied a novel or play as supplementary reading. Teachers assigned research papers and themes to help their pupils develop better writing skills.

New grammar and literature texts brought a fresh approach to traditional material in English classrooms. Increasing the students' understanding of literature, many English teachers assigned special projects. Margie Leidheiser and Susie Bibb entertained Miss Jeanne Saunders' sophomore classes by adapting Richard III to a western setting, a beatnik setting, and a sinking ship scene. In another honors section, Miss Dorothy Jordan's sophomores argued whether Richard III was a tragic hero or the essence of evil. Mr. George Longest's pupils enacted Eppie's marriage in scenes from Silas Marner. To make Julius Caesar more realistic, students in Miss Virginia Schaaf's classes dressed in Roman costumes while reading their parts.

Coming out in December, a creative writing booklet appeared in English classes. It contained prose, essays and short stories, and poetry, written by students in sophomore, junior and senior English classes. Encouraged by the enthusiastic reception of the students, the English Department immediately began making plans for another issue to appear in the spring. In February, the English Department compiled a creative writing folder of two poems, two essays, and two short stories to be sent for judging by the Virginia High School League.

During the first part of the Journalism course, Miss Shirley Ward, Journalism teacher, assigned the students work sheets to show them the many types of news stories which appear in the paper. The students put questions to Mr. Mears in a press conference held to gain experience in interviewing. For another project, the journalism students measured inches in various papers to determine the percentage of space devoted to sports, human interest, and other types of newspaper articles. Mr. John Leard, city editor of the Richmond News Leader, gave a talk on newswriting.

Drama students gained experience in reading plays by reading weekly selections from the Theatre Arts magazine. At Christmas the glee club provided background music while the drama class re-enacted the Christmas story. For their part in the one act plays, dramatics pupils chose Joey by George Else.

During Mrs. Mildred Harris' speech class's study of radio and television speaking, students produced and directed their own radio and television programs.

In December Mrs. Harris held try-outs for forensics. After selected students practiced in the areas in which they were interested, a group of judges made the first eliminations. In March, the judges chose the finalists for the district meet on April 14. Members of the Douglas Freeman team included John Freeman, boys' prose; Barbara Green, girls' prose; Mark Goldman, boys' public speaking; Carole Cooper, girls' public speaking; Jay Hereford, spelling; and Glen Shivel, poetry. For the first time in several years, a debating team, organized by English teacher Mrs. Rosemary Friend, added a new field to DSF's forensic team.

JOURNALISTS PAUL WADDY AND BILL POWELL measure column inches to find element percentages in national newspapers.

Departments advance by improving instruction

CALCULATING THE ANSWER to a lengthy problem becomes simple work for Judy Leard as she uses her slide rule.

Mathematics instructors taught chemistry classes! That's what happened when four teachers got together to improve instruction. Mrs. Susan Lambiotte and Mrs. Margaretta Stephens of the mathematics department taught logarithms to the chemistry classes of Mrs. Sue Pedigo and Mrs. Marguerite Trent. The majority of these students, being in an accelerated class, felt the need for the interchange of teaching.

Students in plane and solid geometry classes gave oral and written reports pertaining to line and spatial relations. They also designed working models and bulletin board exhibits to demonstrate geometric principles.

The mathematics program for the year provided for a continuation of regular and honors courses in order to provide for individual pupil needs. During the first week of April, students in algebra, geometry, and trigonometry courses participated in competitive tests. The purposes for administering the tests were to acquaint the students with the achievements and skills they should have acquired in the special courses and to determine how well individual teachers were correlating their teaching with that of others in the department. In each course, the student making the highest score received a certificate and an award. The top achievers were as follows: Algebra I, Jane Inscoe; Algebra II, honors, Allan Lough; Algebra II, regular, Dean Johnson; Plane Geometry, honors, Bonnie Greenberg; Plane Geometry, regular, Durwood Felton; College Algebra, Bill Jones; Solid Geometry and Trigonometry, honors, Tom Thurston; Solid Geometry and Trigonometry, regular, Sam Baker.

Annual Science Fair attracts DSF students

Soldering gun in hand, an energetic Rebel peered into the inner workings of the television set. Working carefully he cut wires, loosened screws, and finally emerged triumphantly with a choice electronic component. No, this Freemanite was not realizing an age old dream to dismantle the family T. V. Instead he was putting to good use one of the numerous used television receivers given the science department by a local company. Using parts from these sets and special electronics kits, third semester physics students gained a better understanding of electronics through the construction of radios, amplifiers, and others apparatus.

Throughout the department, teachers encouraged independent thinking. Chemistry students conducted experiments in order to determine the percentage of oxygen in various compounds. Upon completing the experiments, each individual calculated the theoretical percentages, which he used to check the accuracy of his conclusions. Each student also developed a science project in his selected field of interest. Seniors Ray Saunders and Fred Gallasch experimented with sound reflections and absorption by measuring the decrease of sound intensity caused by a series of fiber-glass panels. Teachers then entered the projects for judging in the fourth annual spring Science Fair under the headings of biology, chemistry, and physics.

The department expanded with the addition of modern physics and biology laboratories in the new building. Miss Martha Carole Rogers and Mr. Charles Davis, Jr. staffed this increased classroom space.

U. S. HISTORY CLASS STAGES historical scenes in the assembly program to commemorate the birthday of Henrico County.

Freemanites celebrate Henrico's 350th year

"Happy Birthday, Henrico County" came to production in the Douglas Freeman auditorium after three week's preparation by the directors, Marcia Galumbeck and Betsy Daves. Its writers, Susan Brown and Susan Marmon of Mrs. Edna Meadows's honor's history class, presented the important events of Henrico's three hundred fiftieth year of existence.

Students of Mr. John W. Lewis, history teacher, constructed projects illustrating periods of history studied. These projects ranged from models of ancient Greek and Roman ships to straw and mud houses representing the early colonial buildings on the Eastern Coast of America.

Paradoxically in its centennial year, Henrico County citizens faced the decision of whether to merge or not to merge with the city of Richmond. Miss Land's classes heard prominent speakers in connection with the plan of merger. One speaker, Mr. Garland Harwood, who helped draw the original merger plan and represented Henrico as a negotiator in the early meetings, spoke in favor of merger with Richmond.

Impersonations of historical characters and modern world figures were given in Miss Rose Frost's history classes. These characters ranged from George Washington to Nikita Khrushchev. Also in Miss Frost's class, government students presented a mock session of the 87th U. S. Senate.

New teaching methods stress oral expression

Amid the confusion of the term's first day, the language department started off the 1961-1962 year in a new laboratory equipped with tape recorders and record players. The modern equipment in the lab provided the language students with new experiences in oral expression.

Through the aid of the lab first-year French students developed speech habits without the assistance of the written word. Likewise, some Latin students used visual aids in the form of posters demonstrating Latin mottos and expressions as others listened to English tapes of ancient Latin tales. Fluency was the goal of the German IV students, each of whom, after reading a book, reported on it in German. Philosophy played an important part in the advanced French classes, whose students were stimulated by Sartre's Existentialism; fourth-year French students read Becket, a current Broadway hit.

Direct from Cuba, Mr. Vincent Cuervo, Spanish teacher, brought a genuine Spanish atmosphere into the halls of the new wing. Spanish students under Miss Doris Abner spent days conversing in Spanish in order to animate their studies.

During the latter part of March, the language department filled the halls of Douglas Freeman with evidence of Language Emphasis Week. Bulletin boards and posters in Spanish, German, Latin, and French introduced a foreign atmosphere to the school.

A personal outside interest caused many students to spend extra time in preparing interesting projects such as relief maps, posters, and special bulletin boards. IN DSF'S LANGUAGE LAB, which provides facilities for speaking as well as hearing modern languages, Richard Mann listens intently before he repeats the German words of the speaker.

Art murals, drum major create trends at DSF

Music—first a bassoon, then a tenor sax. While Don Schreiber, a talented sophomore, tried out the new tenor sax and bassoon, Jana Privette, the drum major, directed the band with her blue and gray baton. The band accompanied the Rebel teams to games and urged the players on to victory with their music and spirit. Members of the music department were frequently traveling. The band moved to Charlottesville for the State Festival, and WMBG played host to the Glee Club for their Christmas broadcast. Mr. Hunter Purdie, the music director, organized a new "Swing Choir" for popular music. Auditions gave interested students a chance to join this new group.

Art students provided new attractions in the halls. Students tried to interpret an abstract displayed by Kenny Haskins. Just down the hall Miss Virginia Moseley unveiled her o'll murals, painted in her spare time for her own enjoyment and for instruction of her students. Corinne Langhorne independently experimented with oil paints, while Art III designed fashions and did figure sketching.

Supporting a Red Cross Project, the art students painted and developed displays for the exhibit.

Business students learn income tax procedures

"If I claim myself, does that mean I'm deductible?" This was but one of the questions racing through the minds of the business students while studying income tax forms. During their two weeks of study with these forms they learned the proper way to file for their income tax.

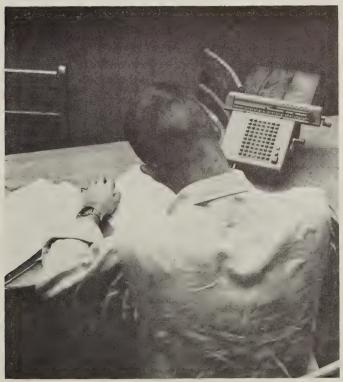

In the office practice classes Freemanites learned the manipulation of calculating, adding, and duplicating machines. Students used a system of rotation, with the position of office manager and operators at the various machines alternating every few days. The need for more equipment because of enlarged classes was solved by the buying of a semi- automatic calculator and the borrowing of new model machines.

First-year typing students practiced daily to acquire elementary skills and to learn general procedures.

Typing II classes adopted practice sets for four months, studying business forms and applying their knowledge to practices with fictitious offices.

Chairman of the Business Department this year was Miss Marian Breeden, aided by Miss Dorothea Moore and Mrs. Neil Hillsman.

Phys. Ed. offers third year for junior boys

Preparing to form a gymnastics team, twelve junior boys gave up their study halls to practice in the gym during the sixth period physical education class. Under direction of Coach Jon Massello, the boys performed various stunts on the parallel bars, high bar, mats, side horse and rings.

The boys physical eduction classes participated in the five-star track program in the fall as well as in the spring. This included five main events: the high jump, broad jump, shot put, one-hundred-yard dash and half-mile run. The coaches compared the students' abilities with the abilities of boys competing in the same events throughout the nation.

In the classroom sessions the girls studied mental health, physical fitness and the harmful effects of narcotics and alcohol. They also viewed movies of the 1961 Gym Show, "Silhouette in White," presented last April 13 and 14. During their course in health, the girls completed reports on human anatomy as well as regular assignments in the health book. These studies emphasized originality and thoroughness of study.

DSF classes produce quality workmanship

Safety and good workmanship were the objectives of Mr. Richard B. Anthony, the DSF shop teacher. The boys learned how to respect the tools they used and how to get the best possible results with them. They did not utilize power tools until they reached their second year of shop. At this time they learned the rules governing the safe use of these helpful, but dangerous, machines and, after a period of instruction, started working with them.

Another equally important phase of the Industrial Arts Department was mechanical drawing. Under the able supervision of Mr. Henry M. Wheeler, students learned the elements of blueprint and design. Using these techniques, they made scale drawings of objects.

Honors came to girls in the Homemaking Department as they joined the Easter Parade in their newly made spring dresses and suits. In the nationwide Vogue Sewing Center Contest, Ann Kay Nigro, sponsored by the Westhampton Jr. Women's Club, won first place in the district competition for making a fashionable jacket dress. Martha Blaylock excelled in the field of homemaking as she received the Douglas Freeman Betty Crocker Award for her score on a standard test.

In keeping with the Christmas season, each girl exhibited to the class a decoration or a toy that she had made. During the week of Thanksgiving, pupils prepared a complete turkey dinner.

In classes, students meet challenges while they work as groups

Whether competing for the prize in a P-TA membership drive or making plans for Homecoming, DSF's classes meet challenges as groups. Together they work on Talent Night, the senior picnic, the sophomore dance. As individuals they are components of the school's framework. The promising sophomore adds depth to the track team; the hardworking junior strives for a position of leadership in the SCA or on a publication; the established senior helps to guide the school along its course. Within classes, Rebels meet new friends and keep old ones. Within classes, a student assumes his place in his high school,

"Where is the gym?" This was a question asked by many unsuspecting sophomores in September. The problem of finding classrooms, not only in DSF proper, but also in the new annex, beset the bewildered new Rebel underclassmen.

The sophomore student body was the largest to enter Douglas Freeman. Because of the size of their class the sophomores met in special assemblies.

It did not take long, however for the eager underclassmen to become a part of Douglas Freeman. The class supplied six lettering members to the varsity football team. The junior varsity football and basketball teams, composed of sophomores, achieved outstanding records of 5-1 and 18-0 respectively. Sophomores became active members of the DSF Publications. Many scholarly underclassmen achieved membership to the various language clubs while others embarked on accelerated math or science courses.

The theme of the annual sophomore class dance was "A Night Under the Midnight Sun." With only a week's notice for preparation, the sophomore class put forth all their resources on the decorations and refreshments. Bleachers were folded and gym equipment relinquished its usual positions for stays in the corners, while determined Rebels cut, taped, stapled, and worked. At the end of a long day, the DSF gym sported a crepe paper ceiling with helium-filled balloons, cardboard penguins, a tissue-paper igloo, a band, and lightly stepping sophomores.

"I'm going to order a ruby." The first semester was only beginning, but the eager juniors had already begun counting the days until the arrival of class rings. Joyfilled Rebels displayed the cherished treasures when the rings arrived, one day before Christmas vacation.

A simulated visit to Venus set the scene for Douglas Freeman's combined Junior Class and SCA Talent-Stunt Night production. Under "Heavenly Stars" individual Rebels displayed various talents, while the clubs participated in humorous stunts and skits.

Spring brought the familiar sight of juniors plodding across the school yard at eight-thirty on Saturday mornings. The College-bound Rebels reported early to take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude and National Merit Scholarship Tests.

The traditional exercise of juniors cleaning up after the senior prom took place again this year. A dreamy "Moon River" provided atmosphere for the long awaited junior prom. Starry-eyed Rebels danced to the music of the Embers, a local combo.

The class received its own guidance counselor this year as Miss Glasselle Adams began full-time work with inquisitive juniors. She administered the SCAT and STEP tests and helped Rebels find their abilities in the interpretation of their test scores.

Mrs. Faye Hill, senior class counselor, presented talks to the junior class, dealing with common questions about colleges.

WORK IN THE FIELD OF CERAMICS intrigues Paige Riley as he carefully moulds clay into a plate.

SENIOR OFFICERS. Frank Bowman, president; Dorothy Daille Pritchard, vice-president; Miss Dorothea Moore, adviser; Penny Sanford, treasurer; Anne Seaholm, secretary.

Seniors win success in sports, scholarships

"Odds, bobs, hammer and tongs, I'm burning!" was the scream coming from the stage as Captain Hook discovered the Lost Boys' underground shelter. For one night the college-bound seniors laid aside their books for an evening of comedy as they presented Peter Pan, a rousing comedy keynoted by the turbulent antics of Captain Hook and the playful Peter Pan. Peter Pan was one of the many major productions presented by the class thespians.

Initiating their final year at Douglas Freeman, the seniors assumed new roles of leadership. Athletically the senior class produced a scholastic All-American tackle, Bill Jones, and the best over-all year of sports achievements since DSF became a member of the Central District. Scholastically the class produced three National Merit Scholarship finalists, Jay Hereford, Linda Broyles, and Bert Long.

The streets and sidewalks of "The Great White Way" were the scenes that entranced the seniors at the senior court dance. The lamps on the steps of the Waldorf Astoria overlooked the dancing Rebels and lighted the surrounding buildings. Amid the tranquility of a city park, Mr. W. Howard Mears crowned Frank Bowman and Peggy Fitzhugh King and Queen of the court.

Early exams were a privilege the class enjoyed. On the day before graduation, Bermuda clad Rebels climbed aboard buses and embarked on a day of sun and fun at Camp Kentwood. Graduation came and the seniors became the new alumni of Douglas Freeman.

Rebels as customers challenge businesses in DSF's community

Commerce is an active force in the immediate community of Douglas Freeman and in the broader community, too. The soft tinkle of the bell over a gift shop door may signal the arrival of a Rebel, looking for just the right gift for a friend. Another student may buy a phonograph record; later, he and his classmates will listen to it while they decorate for a prom. Rebels who rush into stores to make last-minute purchases and salesgirls who search through piles of blouses to find one a customer likes are parts of this commerce. Business firms in DSF's community find their challenge in giving quality and service to Rebels and so gaining their support and patronage.

An occasional pause lets students prepare for coming challenge

Now and then in the hurried pace of school days come scattered pauses. Perhaps it is the end of a report period or just after exams. When a lull occurs, Rebels have a chance to rest and regain their bearings. They can stop momentarily, take note of themselves, and discover exactly where they are. When they find the answer to this question, they begin again, travelling on what is possibly a new course or merely an extension of a more familiar one. After taking a deep breath, students are set to meet the challenges tomorrow may bring.
